A Newport Beach Experience

As we dive into Summer take some time to sit on a beach or pool or boat and let the water speak to you. Send me a message and let me know what it says to you.

My first touch of the water on the Pacific Coast in Newport Beach was great! I have been to the west coast many times but never had the time to spend on the beach. The ocean stretched endlessly before me, a shimmering mirror reflecting the beautiful sunset.

When my feet made contact with the cool, velvety touch of the Pacific water, I felt an immediate sense of release. Every time the water came it a new idea for my next book came to me. The water was feeding my soul. I sat on the rocks and let the water rejuvenate my thoughts. The longer I sat and watched the sun make its descent, I was able to plot and see where the story was going.
